Here are some questions about the presidential candidates. Below are left-right scales on which you can rate characteristics of the candidates.

For the item below, the far left side of the scale means that you think the candidate is extremely "trustworthy." Placing the slider on the far right side means that you think the candidate is extremely "untrustworthy." The middle means that you think the candidate is not particularly toward one end or the other.

Questions Q26_4 – Q27_4

Where would you rate __ on this scale?

Here are some questions about various groups in our society. Below are left-right scales on which you can rate characteristics of people in different groups.

For the item below, the far left side of the scale means that you think most of the people in that group are extremely "hardworking." Placing the slider on the far right side means that you think most of the people in that group are extremely "lazy." The middle means that you think the people in this group are not particularly toward one end or the other.
